寒梅不知春早到，却有梅花笑春风。
This is the summer of heroes! Heroes come in all different shapes and sizes and the Camden County Library System will be celebrating them all. Visit our eight branches and attend some of our many superhero programs. Every child has an inner superhero that can soar by joining the Summer Reading Program. It is a great way to include reading and activities into your summer family time.

For the third summer in a row, The Camden County Library System wants you to sit back, relax and enjoy our Summer Music Festival. Whether it's jazz, classical, spoken word, American standards or traditional Celtic, we will be showcasing some of the best musical talent in South Jersey.

It's Summer Reading! It's a Bird…It's a Plane…Let your inner superhero shine this summer by joining our 2015 Summer Reading Program for children, Every Hero Has a Story! Being part of Camden County Library’s Summer Reading Program is a great way to include reading and related activities in summer family time. It helps children maintain and improve reading skills over the summer months. Not to mention there’s a chance to win some great prizes!

Your child will start by registering for summer reading at your local library branch. Please check with your branch for registration start dates. Once you have registered, stop by your library to pick up a summer reading log. Keep track of every hour your child reads and/or is read to. Read anything! Read anywhere! Make sure to log your hours with your local branch to earn incentives and to be entered to win larger prizes.

While you’re in between books, stop by your library for a variety of age-appropriate events!

TEEN SUMMER READING PROGRAM: UNMASK
Teens can get in on the summer reading action too! Keep track of every hour you read, make sure to log your hours with your library and get the chance to win some AWESOME prizes. Be sure to look at our event calendar to keep your summer filled with fun.

Library Van wins NJLA Award
The New Jersey Library Association honored our library with a PR award this past April for a colorful illustration, by NJ artist Dan Fenelon, that adorns one of our delivery vans. Award entries were judged on the effectiveness of their message, originality, creativity of design and aesthetic appeal.

As our Library Director Linda Devin said in April 2014 when the van hit the streets, “I think the van illustration is a wonderful way to get the public’s attention and advertise what our libraries have to offer. Its colorful presence on our local roadways is a welcome sight this spring after the long, hard winter we’ve all endured. It’s an invitation and a reminder to visit your local library.”
Freeholder Ian Leonard Honored as Library Champion by NJLA
Nominated by Camden County Library for his tireless work to help libraries

Each year the New Jersey Library Association seeks to recognize individuals, groups, organizations, businesses, corporations or other entities that have made a remarkable contribution in support of libraries serving their communities.

Camden County Library Director Linda Delia knew without reservation who she wanted to nominate in 2015: Camden County Freeholder Ian Leonard. In her letter of nomination to the NJ Library Association, Devin states:

“Freeholder Leonard is passionate about literacy and helping those in need, and he wants to make a difference in the city where he lives, Camden. During the past year, he was instrumental in the implementation of free reading classes for adults at the Nilza Cruz-Perez branch library in Camden. Last summer Freeholder Leonard passionately told me about the need to turn around the lives of Camden residents. We both agreed that many people were unemployed or underemployed due to the fact that they could not read. The Freeholder wanted to see reading classes for adults offered at the Nilza Cruz Perez Branch and I agreed that we could make that happen.

When others told him that he would not succeed, Freeholder Leonard believed in his vision and he tirelessly helped pave the way for the project by seeking out funding and turning to his colleague and friend Senator Nilza Cruz-Perez for assistance in finding committed, experienced teachers for the program. Once the building blocks were in place, our staff developed a reading program and found students. Within a few months, we launched our first classes in November 2014.

The reading program that no one thought would work is now thriving. After only a few months, the program is serving twenty-two ESL students and six Basic Literacy students. Four regular classes are held each week at the branch. In addition to learning English and reading, students are invested in learning how to connect with the community and lead the city and other systems work. The teachers in the program love the classes and working with the students, who are courageous and very open with their stories. A father in the ESL class, a first generation immigrant from Mexico, wants to be able to effectively advocate for his two sons in their Camden elementary school, especially for his son on the spectrum. From the basic reading class, one student works at a pet food store and wants to be able to do things like inventory. He studies dictionaries and has created his own system for using sight words -- memorizing a picture of what each word represents along with what the word looks like.

In the future, the reading classes will offer a “whole family” approach to literacy. Children of the students will be treated to story times while their parents attend classes and they’ll be given books to take home and read. The students will get tips on working with their children and the importance of early childhood literacy.”

The Freeholder was presented with this award at the New Jersey Library Association Conference on April 21.

Many thanks to Freeholder Leonard for his efforts in bringing about this valuable program. Congratulations on a well-deserved honor.

Free Math Tutoring Available at two Branch Locations
For ages 19 and up
Want to brush up on your math, maybe for coursework you are taking or for the job? In March we began offering free, basic math tutoring sessions on a drop-in basis.

A volunteer tutor from Literacy Volunteers of Camden County will be on hand at the Nita L. Cruz-Perez Downtown Camden Branch, 6:30 p.m. on Mondays and at the Voorhees branch on Monday mornings at 10 a.m. to help.

Students enrolled in free reading classes at the Cruz-Perez branch had been asking for math help, explains Shyamoli De, the Adult Education Literacy Coordinator at the library. “These new tutoring services are a nice complement to the literacy support we provide. The Literacy Volunteers offer ESL and basic literacy instruction through the library,” notes Shyamoli De. Call (856) 772-1636 x7331 or go to http://www.camdencountylibrary.org/hype/literacy for more information.

Free Math Tutoring Available at two Branch Locations
For ages 19 and up
Want to brush up on your math, maybe for coursework you are taking or for the job? In March we began offering free, basic math tutoring sessions on a drop-in basis.

A volunteer tutor from Literacy Volunteers of Camden County will be on hand at the Nita I. Cruz-Perez Downtown Camden Branch, 6:30 p.m. on Mondays and at the Voorhees branch on Monday mornings at 10 a.m. to help.

Students enrolled in free reading classes at the Cruz-Perez branch had been asking for math help, explains Shyamoli De, the Adult Education Literacy Coordinator at the library. “These new tutoring services are a nice complement to the literacy support we provide. The Literacy Volunteers offer ESL and basic literacy instruction through the library,” notes Shyamoli De. Call (609) 772-1636 x7331 or go to http://www.camdencountylibrary.org/hypeliteracy for more information.

The first two students in New Jersey to graduate from our Career Online High School were recognized by the Camden County Board of Freeholders at February 19 meeting.

Kirsten Hoy, Career Online High School Graduate; Camden County Library System; Barbara Laynor, Vice President, Camden County Library Commission; Linda Devlin, Director, Camden County Library System.

From left: Mary Chute, New Jersey State Librarian; Kristen Hoy, Career Online High School Graduate; Shyamoli De, Literacy/Adult Education Coordinator, Camden County Library System; Barbara Laynor, Vice President, Camden County Library Commission; David Lanz, Associate Director, Camden County Library System; Angel Rodriguez, Career Online High School Graduate; Freeholder Ian Leonard. Location to the Camden County Library System; Nancy Constantino, President, Camden County Library Commission; Linda Devlin, Director, Camden County Library System.

Freeholder Leonard Honored as Library Champion by NJLA
Nominated by Camden County Library for his tireless work to help libraries

Each year the New Jersey Library Association seeks to recognize individuals, groups, organizations, businesses, corporations or other entities that have made a remarkable contribution in support of libraries serving their communities.

Camden County Library Director Linda Dippell knows without reservation who she wanted to nominate in 2015: Camden County Freeholder Ian Leonard. In her letter of nomination to the NJ Library Association, Devon states:

“Freeholder Leonard is passionate about literacy and helping those in need, and he wants to make a difference in the city where he lives, Camden. During the past year, he was instrumental in the implementation of free reading classes for adults at the Nilsa Cruz-Perez branch library in Camden. Last summer Freeholder Leonard passionately told me about the "Freeholder Leonard is passionate about literacy and helping to see reading classes for adults offered at the Nilsa Cruz Perez Branch. He believed in his vision and he tirelessly helped pave the way for the project to be a reality. His dedication and hard work have paid off, and the classes have been well-received by the community. I am honored to nominate him for this award.""}

When others told him that he would not succeed, Freeholder Leonard believed in his vision and he tirelessly helped pave the way for the project by seeking out funding and turning to his colleagues and friends Senator Nilsa Cruz-Perez for assistance in securing committed, experienced teachers for the program. Once these building blocks were in place, our staff developed a reading program and found students. Within a few months, we launched our first classes in November 2014.

The reading program that no one thought would work is now thriving. After only a few months, the program is serving twenty-two ESL students and six Basic Literacy students. Four regular classes are held each week at the branch. In addition to learning English and reading, students are taught in learning how to connect with the community and know the city and other systems work. The teachers in the program love the classes and working with the students, who are courageous and very open with their stories. A father in the ESL class, a first generation immigrant from Mexico, wants to be able to effectively advocate for his two sons in their Camden elementary school, especially for his son on the spectrum. From the basic reading class, one student works at a pet food store and wants to be better able to do things like inventory. He studies dictionaries and has created his own system for using sight words -- memorizing a picture of what each word represents along with what the word looks like.

In the future, the reading classes will offer a "whole family" approach to literacy. Children of the students will be treated to storytimes while their parents attend classes and they'll be given books to take home and read. The students will get tips on working with their children and the importance of early childhood literacy.”

The Freeholder was presented with this award at the New Jersey Library Association Conference in April 2015. Many thanks to Freeholder Leonard for his efforts in bringing about this valuable program. Congratulations on a well-deserved honor.
